RESEARCHING OUR COLONIAL HISTORY IN THE HAWKESBURY AREA

Wednesday 20 October 11am-1.15pm

The Royal Australian Historical Society in conjunction with the Hawkesbury Library Service presents Hawkesbury Regional Seminar online. Adjunct Associate Professor Carol Liston AO and Christine Yeats will discuss ways of making the best use of the recently digitised Australian Joint Copying Project material, the Court of Claims records and related land and property information to learn more about the life and times of the Hawkesbury's early settlers. Michelle Nichols OAM will speak about the local history resources in the Hawkesbury Library.

Cost is $10 and to book go to

HAWKESBURY CRIER AVAILABLE ONLINE FOR FREE

The September issue of the Hawkesbury Crier is available online for free, see <http://www.hawkesbury.net.au/community/hfhg/crier/index.html> Normally the Crier is only available for subscribers but as the meeting was held online, we decided to make it accessible for free.

HAWKESBURY VOICES NOW ONLINE – CAN YOU HELP?

Hawkesbury Library Service invites you to explore Hawkesbury Voices and the first interviews from our collection online at <https://amplify.gov.au/hawkesbury> Hawkesbury Voices captures the social and cultural history of the Hawkesbury through local stories and we are calling for digital volunteers from all over Australia to help transcribe them.

Using the innovative online tool called Amplify, developed by the State Library of NSW, anyone from anywhere can now search, listen to and transcribe some of digitised audio oral history interviews. A selection of our digitised oral history collection have been placed on the platform with a copy of the interview, as interpreted by a machine. Volunteers can assist by listening to the interviews and then correcting the transcription to help make them more accessible.

The first interviews available on Amplify were conducted in the mid-1980s and document life in the Hawkesbury including stories about living through the Depression of the 1930s, various floods, riverboats, schooling, entertainment and agricultural practises, to name a few. Some memories even date before World War 1, with some interviewees born in the 1890s or early 1900s. The interviews were recorded from a wide range of community members who were willing to share their stories and include local residents, both men and women, with occupations ranging from farmers, teachers, business managers to RAAF pilots and politicians.

Hawkesbury Library is hoping to recruit a community of digital volunteers around Australia for the important task of transcribing the interviews so that more people can learn about the amazing stories contained in the Hawkesbury Voices Collections. These are just a few of the amazing stories in the Library's collection, with plans to release more digitised oral histories over the coming months.

It is not necessary to log in, just go to <https://amplify.gov.au/hawkesbury> and select an interview. There are instructions, tutorials and FAQ on the site. For more information about Hawkesbury Voices and Oral history see <https://www.hawkesbury.nsw.gov.au/library/services/local-and-family-history-resources/hawkesbury-voices> Any enquiries contact the Local History Librarian history@hawkesbury.nsw.gov.au
